President's Message

President Pat Harper is on a much delayed research trip to the San Bruno archives. Due to her absence there is no President's message for this issue, but here are excerpts from her September newsletter message:

Welcome back. It's hard to believe summer is over and we are ready to start a new year of OGS. Pat Philippsen, our Vice-President and Program chair has been working diligently with her co-chair, Bobbi Hubbard, to line up a schedule of very interesting programs for the second Thursday of every month. Check the Olympia Genealogical Society web page where Jerri McCoy will have a full listing of topics: <http://www.rootsweb.com/~waogs/>. I think you will be as pleased and excited as I am.

Thanks to long time member, Steven Morrison, the Olympia Genealogical Society will be meeting again this year at the Thurston County Courthouse.

Pat Harper, Olympia Genealogical Society President

Queries: Where are they?

No Queries were received for publication in this issue.

Got a brick wall? Send in a query and you might find someone who can help you climb that wall.

Queries by members are free of charge and will be published on the Society's website as well as in the Quarterly. Non-members may list one free query per issue as space permits. Each query should contain at least one date (or approximation), one surname, one area or other information to identify the person being sought. Queries are subject to abbreviation. Queries relating to Thurston County will also be placed on the Gen Web site. All queries should be typed or printed and should be received by the 15th of the month prior to publication (i. e. by June 15 for the July issue).

This Quarterly is exchanged with many other society journals across the United States. It also goes to institutions such as the Library of Congress, Allen County Library, the Genealogical Society of Utah (in Salt Lake City), and the Seattle Public Library – so it is read by people all across our nation.

Send queries to Fran Anderson at franand@earthlink.net or Quarterly editor, Olympia Genealogical Society, P.O.Box 1313, Olympia, WA, 98507-1313.

Have you heard about the world's largest encyclopedia? Here's part of a description about it, from it.

Wikipedia

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Wikipedia is a Web-based free-content multilingual encyclopedia project. It exists as a wiki, a website that allows any visitor to freely edit its content. The name Wikipedia is a portmanteau of the words wiki and encyclopedia. Wikipedia is written collaboratively by volunteers, allowing most articles to be changed by almost anyone with access to the website. Wikipedia's main servers are in Tampa, Florida, the United States, with additional servers in Amsterdam, the Netherlands and Seoul, South Korea.

Wikipedia started as an English language project on January 15, 2001, as a complement to the expert-written and now defunct Nupedia, and is now operated by the non-profit Wikimedia Foundation. It was created by Larry Sanger and Jimmy Wales; Sanger resigned from both Nupedia and Wikipedia on March 1, 2002. Wales has described Wikipedia as "an effort to create and distribute a multilingual free encyclopedia of the highest possible quality to every single person on the planet in their own language."^[1]

Currently Wikipedia has more than 5 million articles in many languages, including more than 1,390,000 in the English-language version. There are 229 language editions of Wikipedia, sixteen of which have more than 50,000 articles each. The German-language edition has been distributed on DVD-ROM, and there have been proposals for an English DVD or print edition. Since inception, Wikipedia has steadily risen in popularity,^[2] and has spawned several sister projects. According to Alexa, Wikipedia ranks among the top 20 most visited sites, and many of its pages have been mirrored or forked by other sites, such as Answers.com.

There has been controversy over Wikipedia's reliability and accuracy, with the site receiving criticism for its susceptibility to vandalism, uneven quality and inconsistency, systemic bias, and preference for consensus or popularity over credentials. Information is sometimes unconfirmed and questionable, lacking proper sources that could legitimize articles. However, a 2005 comparison performed by the science journal Nature of sections of Wikipedia and the Encyclopedia Britannica found that the two were close in terms of the accuracy of their articles on the natural sciences.

*Editor's note: There are many Wikipedia articles that pertain to genealogy. Check them out!

GATHERING THE GENEALOGICAL GOODS

by Judith Upton

It took thirty years to gather, organize, document, write, cogitate, re-write, and publish the material that comprised Glimpses of Gate: A Pictorial History. It seemed like something should have been learned that ought to be shared, hopefully shortening your process considerably. Thus, in this first of two articles, we'll talk about the motives, mentors, and methods for gathering information for your family genealogy. It will be followed by more specific information on writing and printing the material you've gathered.

Now, you could spend a lot of time and energy on your project because it seemed like a good idea, or someone else thought you should. In fact, if your cousin is computer illiterate and you have the new laptop, you're the obvious choice, right? This is a good time to check your motive. What is your goal? Are there questions about your heritage, your relatives, that you are really burning to find the answers to? Do you have a sense of history that makes you want to preserve not just the facts, but the authentic stories that add color to an earlier way of life? If you are doing it to please your cousin, see your name in print, or beat your sister to the punch, you're not going to last the eye-blurring days of internet researching and the finger-cramping nights of typing. You still want to do it? Then focus. Be intentional. Admittedly, there were a lot of rabbit trails run because I didn't know what folks in Gate knew, or what I needed to know. What ARE the questions you want answered?

I'd like to provoke you to thinking about, looking with a different perspective at, the pieces of history that you've heard or gathered. It may be just a call to asking new questions. For instance, the Ecclesiastes theory was used with Gate. It states that "That which has been is what will be, that which is done is what will be done, and there is nothing new under the sun." The question was "What made Gate life the same as anywhere else?" After all, we generally all are born, marry, work hard, and die. The specifics pointed out what made Gate unique. Where were the settlers born? What age were they married? How much older was the husband? Was it a first marriage? How many children in the family? What were the occupations, and how many times was the occupation the cause of premature death? Were the answers typical of that time, culture, location?

Because of looking at the history of a community like Gate and the families that comprised it, questions were used that may enlarge the sense of what made your family the way they are. What brought your family to America, to the community where they settled, and what caused them to move on? What community codes and covenants were known but unspoken? (Poaching deer to feed your family was acceptable in Gate, but snagging spawning salmon to fertilize your crops was not.) How did it affect your family? What was (and was not) available in your family's town?

There is yet another way to flesh out the skeleton family tree with attention to family stories. In the book Black Sheep and Kissing Cousins by Elizabeth Stone, she causes us to ask: Why do we repeatedly tell the stories we do? If there is exaggeration, what is the point? Following are some topics that can be reinforced by repeated stories peculiar to your family.

Family name: What was their reputation in the community? Who or what was responsible for defining your family's reputation in terms of power, education, money – or the lack thereof. And if your folks won't 'fess up, ask the neighbors, who will be happy to share. If there is a family name that has been passed down through the generations, ask who was the first, and why they were so honored?

Role models: Listen to the lore. Expectations were presented in expressions like "You're a good (teacher, cook, logger, gardener) just like your (aunt, uncle, grandpa). Were there family members who were always strong, or always sick? What were the rewards? It could be that the sickly one got lots of attention, and escaped responsibility.

Character: Was there a strong individual, or a strong family/group loyalty? Was this a part of their ethnicity? What stories pointed out that choices have consequences? What was or was not an option (education, divorce, bankruptcy)?

Spiritual heritage: Where did your family go to church? Is there a reason your family didn't go to church? Be aware that bluntly asking "Why?" can cause a defensive reaction. A more tactful approach, such as "Could you explain? I don't understand..." might get a better result.

Cultural: Traditions could include food, entertainment (music, dance – or the lack thereof), and celebrations. What does it tell you about your family if they celebrated St.Piran's Day, or Rosh Hashanah?

Family sayings: There is a Russian proverb that states "He who dwells on the past loses an eye, he who forgets the past loses both eyes." In our family, the saying that "being born in a garage doesn't make you a car" would make no sense unless you knew the family history. Grandma was born in a part of Germany overtaken by Russia, and insisted that she was indeed German. Another saying just passed on good sense: "If you're not asked, don't tell."

Now that you have your motive clearly in mind, you might consider looking for a mentor. Seriously! If you have not done genealogical research, used the computer much, or done a lot of writing, you might check your family, friends, or neighborhood resources (Senior Centers, Olympia Genealogical Society, library) to see if you find someone who would be willing to come alongside of you. They can provide not only expertise, but some perspective and encouragement on the days when the project seems overwhelming. It can be surprisingly helpful to be accountable to that person who will simply ask, "What have you done this week?"

If you're really fortunate, you'll have an elderly relative (or two) who will be willing to share their recollections with you. If you're hesitant, feeling like you might be too intrusive or personal, remember that elders are often pleased that someone is interested in them and feels that what they have to say is valuable. The gerontologists would say that we are helping them to "bring closure" to their lives. Develop a trust level with them by showing genuine interest. If they are concerned that their memories might not be accurate, or might conflict with another family member's, assure them that their tale is valid. Even police have trouble getting exactly the same story from eye witnesses to an incident! Hopefully they will be a people person, who has developed an eye for detail and an ear for local vernacular.

Don't overlook the importance of what you can learn from their every day lives – back to Ecclesiastes and "What is the same; what is different?" You might ask what they did for fun, what they played. The more specific the question, the more concrete the answers, the more interesting the story will be. For instance, if they answer that they played with dolls, you might pursue the details by asking how many dolls they had, which was their favorite and why, where it came from, whether they sewed clothes for it, and what happened to it.

Best case scenario, you will find a storyteller. In the days before television and computers, information was passed on in the ancient form of stories. Of course, it was an art, and the best tale-tellers were the best embellishers. Now if you are doing a history, you need to check for accuracy. The stories about beating the Black River waters to scare the salmon out of the way so the cattle could drink work; whether they walked across the river on the backs of the salmon is questionable.

Maintain enough humility that you can admit you don't know/understand everything. When it's something very familiar to them, but a bit technical (from logging or farming to cooking on a wood stove), gently ask more questions, while you are with them, until you are confident that you understand the story they are sharing. If they express sentiments that are uncomfortable to you (about religion, marriage, politics), honor their right to their opinion, but try to find out if they are a result of their generation, family, or are personal.

It would be very comfortable to have a method for your madness, but the truth is if you are finding clues to the mystery, pieces to the puzzle, you need to use what is working for you. Go to as many primary sources as possible. Ask permission to transcribe or photocopy material, then borrow and return letters and diaries. Do the archival and on-line research; find birth, marriage, death records. Look for patterns: age discrepancies in marriages, early deaths of children and/or their mothers, second marriages. Add details from local publications such as phone directories, advertisements, and newspapers. Be aware of inaccuracies – the censuses had three spellings for one Gate family's name! Look and listen well, and record carefully. Initially, gather whatever is available to you – on down the line, it may just be the missing piece that you don't know where to fit yet. Borrow pictures and consider having them digitized or restored. Be aware of the relationships that are revealed in the positioning of the subjects. Enlarge them, and check for details. Use the pictures as vehicles for discussion – your "mentor" may know who the people are, why they were gathered, or identify the items (tools, guns, equipment) in the photograph.

Genealogies are preserved by researching times and places, dates and names. Family histories are memories preserved by story telling that fleshes out the skeleton forms. YOUR family is a microcosm, representative, but unique. Who will be interested? Frederick Buechner, in the book Now and Then, suggests that "No matter who you are, and no matter how eloquent or otherwise, if you tell your own story with sufficient candor and concreteness, it will be an interesting story and in some sense a universal story."

The next article, "Delivering the Goods," will deal with writing (and re-writing) and choosing how to publish the material you've gathered.

Ahnentafel, from Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

An Ahnentafel (or Ahnenreihe), also known as the Sosa-Stradonitz System, is a genealogical numbering system that allows one to list a person's ancestors in a particular order. It is a construct used in genealogy to display a person's ancestry compactly, without the need for a diagram such as a family tree, which is particularly useful in situations where one may be restricted to using plain text, for example in e-mails or newsgroup articles. The term Ahnentafel is a loan word from the German language, however its German equivalent is Ahnenliste. In German Ahnentafel means a genealogical chart showing the ancestors of one person in the form of a binary tree.

An Ahnentafel is effectively a method for storing a binary tree in an array by listing the nodes in level-order. The subject of the Ahnentafel is listed as #1, their father as #2 and their mother as #3, then their grandparents as #4 to #7, and so on back through the generations. In this scheme, any person's father has double that person's number, and a person's mother has double the person's number plus one. Apart from #1, who can be male or female, all even-numbered persons are male, and all odd-numbered persons are female. Using this knowledge, you can find out some things without having to compile a list.

The above is the beginning of the Wikipedia article on Ahnentafel, an example of a Wikipedia entry.

EXCHANGE NOTES

Jean Laws & Pat Philippsen

The publications mentioned are sent to our society in exchange for our Quarterly which is sent to them. They are filed alphabetically by state and county in the vertical files in the genealogical section of the Olympia Library.

Some of them are eventually bound and placed with the bound periodicals in the genealogical section or in storage at the Montesano Library but can be ordered at the reference desk to be sent to your library for your use.

ONLINE INFO, FIRST
OWNERS IN OK | Oklahoma G S Volt 51 # 2 2006. Info on the new Oklahoma History Research Center which is located at 2401 Laird Ave, Oklahoma City or www.okhistorycenter.org . Click on research for records online for more info. The article also lists some of their holdings including a 5 vol. set of more than 210,000 people who were first owners of land in Ok Territory. |
TREASURE: MUSIC WE
LOVED 100 YEARS AGO | Orange Co Ca G S Journal Apr 2006. You never know 'til you look what you might find in a genealogy publication. This issue has a long article on Music that Americans loved 100 years ago-- Tin Pan Alley, Broadway show tunes, ragtime and Sousa Marches. It covers the history of music in our country and each of the categories including info on many individual songs, which wrote and performed them and much more. A music lover's treasure. |
| KERN CO. CA GREAT
REGISTER FOR 1890;
FAUSTINO MIER NONEGA | Kern Co Ca G S Mar 2006. This issue starts the alphabetical list of names from the Kern Co Great Register for 1890. Also the history and descendants of Faustino Mire Onega. |
| TEXAS COUNTY
CHANGES | Ft Worth G S May 2006 Here is a list of Texas counties that were discontinued and renamed or became part of another. Helpful for Texas researchers. |
| HISTORY OF GATE, WA;
FIRST 1000 SETTLERS
IN OZARKS;

5 GENERATIONS
IN 2 LINES | Federation of G S Forum Spring 2006 Those who attended the June OGS meeting enjoyed Judith Upton's report on the history and people of Gate WA. A more extensive but similar study was made by Marsha Hoffman Rising on the first 1000 settlers who opened the Ozarks. Learn more about this technique of doing a community study. Also in this issue is an article about a family with 5 generations on 2 lines. They would like to hear from anyone who has a 2 sided five generation family. |
| COLONIAL WORD
MEANINGS | Muskingum Co Ohio G S May/June 2006. Here are some colonial word meanings you may run across in your research.
Comfit: Sweetened dried fruit
Jouster: a hawker or peddler of fish
Owler: A smuggler of sheep or wool out of England.
Poltroon: a craven coward. |
| CULVER FAMILY BOOK | Sno-Isle G S 2nd Qtr 2006 This society is celebrating its 20th anniversary. I was interested in an article about a member who compiled a Culver family book based on 20 years of family reunions, 15 plus family photo albums and much research. |

BAPTISMS & GODPARENTS	Dakota Homestead Historical Newsletter June 2006. An article on baptisms and godparents is informative as it includes info on the practice of 3 godparents, early baptismal practices, Latin baptismal terms and VA baptisms
WISCONSIN PRE 1907 BIRTHS & DEATHS ONLINE FREE	Milwaukee Co G S May 2000 The Wisconsin vital records index has been expanded on the Internet. It is pre 1907 and now includes births and deaths. It is free and available at www.wisconsinhistory.org/vitalrecords .
FAMILY HISTORIAN ADVENTURES, BAER FAMILY HISTORY	Puget Sound G S June 2006 As always, members have submitted some interesting articles on their adventures as a family historian. One is about a special collection indexed in the Salt Lake library where the member found her early Baer family history.
LOOKING FOR DESCENDANTS OF JOSHUA OTIS OF VERMONT	Willamette Valley G S Spring 2006 Are you descended from Joshua Otis of Vermont, a Revolutionary soldier? A treasure was found in the OSL collection of a file of loose papers deposited by MayBelle Otis Stevens, a member of DAR. She deposited this maternal when she moved to Ca in the 20's and it contains much on this family. They are looking for a descendant and it will be kept in the WVGS until they find one.
MANUEL M SILVA, BORN 1872 AZORES, 1890 TO CA	San Luis Obispo Co Ca G S May 2006 The most interesting article in this issue is an interview by Karen Christensen Brown of her grandfather Manuel M Silva. He was born in the Azores in 1872 and came to Ca in 1890. His story of life in the Azores and in early Ca is fascinating reading.
FUTURE GENEALOGISTS	G S of Southwestern Pa April 2006. Take a look at "Who will trace our past in the future?" a whole new look at what genealogy may look like to our descendants and how they may do research. Who could have guessed in 1900 or even 1960 when I started genealogy what it would look like today!
HEIRLOOM PROTECTION	Grays Harbor G S Apr/June 2006. An article of interest to all is Protect your Precious Heirlooms. It tells what to do to protect furniture, vintage clothes and linens, china and glassware, silverware, photos, childhood memorabilia and newspaper clippings. For more info go to www.homemadesimple.com .
SEARCHING CENSUS USING WILD CARDS	Hemet-San Jacinto G S May 2006 Wild card research is explained a new way to find an elusive name in the census on ancestry.com . Take the first several letters of the name followed by an * and get long lists of names and spellings you wouldn't have thought of.
QUAKER HISTORY	Toledo area G S Lucas Co Oh Mar 2006 A short history of the Society of Friends (Quakers) for those who have discovered they have Quaker ancestors.
INDIAN VILLAGE, TAMA CO., IOWA HERITAGE QUEST ONLINE LIBRARIES IN WA	Tama Co IA Apr 2006 This issue is dedicated to Indian Village, its towns, people and census including an 1854 census. Seattle G S Spring 2006 If you have a Timberland library card you can access Heritage Quest online. Here is an article listing the many sources available and the subscribing libraries by state.

- CLOSING A HOUSEHOLD Boulder Co G S May 2006. A helpful article to read and save is "Five Steps to Closing a Household with Care and Caring" This is something we've gone through or will face in the future. The emphasis is on paper items including genealogy but others as well.
- THINGS TO CONSIDER WHILE SEARCHING Grant Co G S Mar 2005 A good how-to article on What I Wish I had Known. Some items to consider are people married more than once, name changes, what you think is a mistake may not be one, importance of location, the law and much more.
- BIRNEY SCHOOL HISTORY Walla Walla Valley G S Mar 2006. Most of this issue is on Birney school including history, staff, graduates, alumni and many obits of staff and students. This might be an interesting project for a school in your area of research or in our local area.
- ORAL HISTORY ON NPR Tama Co IA Museum News July 2006 Have you heard of Storycorps? It is a traveling studio from a national project designed to build an oral history of America. It is aired every Friday on NPR's Morning Edition and is modeled after the WPA project of the 1930's to record oral traditions. It started in May 2005 and 2 Storycorp trailers are visiting communities across the country in conjunction with public radio stations.
- HALEY'S COMET LONG AGO USE OF INHERITED PHOTOS, ETC. Milwaukee Co Wis G S Aug 2006 An interesting account of seeing Haley's Comet by someone who was 5 years old at the time. The account was written in 1985. Another account of an author on how she used all the photos and memorabilia left by her mother, who was a saver!
- RESOURCES IN L.A. & NY S King Co G S July/Aug 2006 You can find great information in genealogical publications where you least expect them. Who would look in S King Co for an article on mining for genealogical gold? It gives many resources for genealogists in the L A area. Also a whole page on genealogical resources in N Y.
- GEMS FOR LETTERS Crawford Co Ks G S May June 2006. Here are some little gems you might add to your genealogy letters.
Genealogy is a family affair. Genealogy--chasing your own tale.
Genealogy made me what I am today; Genealogical Bonsai: little family trees. Genealogists live in the past lane. Genealogists: time unravelers.
- NEW PUBLICATION: WSG ANNUAL JOURNAL The Washington State Genealogist Vol I July 2006. Something new! This is the first issue of the Journal of the Wash. State Gen Soc. They have a newsletter also which we receive as a member. This is a journal, published annually, of 30-40 pages of original stories and extracts of public and private records, old newspaper articles and other sources submitted by individuals interested in sharing info about pioneers and early families of Wash. You may want to submit something yourself or at least take a look at this new publication.
- SIOUX VALLEY SD: OFF EXCHANGE LIST Sioux Valley S D Genealogical Society has dropped us from their exchange list due to lack of room in their library. If you need this publication you might enquire about subscribing.

FIRST FEDERAL LAND
BUYERS AT SPRINGFIELD, MO

Federation of Genealogical Societies Forum Summer 2006 If you read the article "Opening the Ozarks 1835-1839 Pt 1" in the Forum Spring 2006, you will want to read part 2. Marsha Hoffman Rising studied the origins of the 1st 100 purchasers of federal land at Springfield Mo. with no info except name and land description. She determined the origins of 854 of them .Pt 2 is an account of the rest of these individuals and what little is known about them. Could your ancestor be one of them? If so, she would like to hear from you.

CW SOLDIERS IN NM CEMETERIES

New Mexico Genealogist June 2006. A researcher in Salt Lake discovered a document that may prove useful to you. It is a "Civil War Roll of Honor -- Names of Soldiers interred in New Mexico Cemeteries." The territory of N. M had 15 Army posts and forts with cemeteries. These men were from many parts of the U S.

CW VETERANS IN PA

Genealogical Society of Southwestern Penn. July 2006 More Civil War soldiers--this has a list and info on Civil War veterans in Jefferson twp, Washington Co Pa. The author would like additions or corrections to this list.

PIONEER DIARIES,
PIONEER WOMEN
ROGUE VALLEY, OR

Rogue Valley G S Jackson Co Or Summer 2006 A good article on Pioneer Diaries many of which are housed in the Rogue Valley Genealogical library. Even better, this is followed by Pioneer women of the Rogue River Valley, an account of many of the brave women who came with their husbands and held their families together.

WAGES IN 1900

Oregon G S Summer 2006 Some interesting facts about wages and education in 1900. The average wage was 22 cents an hour at a yearly salary of $200-400. per year for a work week of about 58 hours. A good accountant earned about $2000 a year, a dentist 2500 and mechanical engineer $5000. 90 % of doctors had no college education--just a so called medical school. Those were the good old days.

SUMMER IN EARLY DAYS OF SALEM, OR
1900 LETTERS
ENGLAND TO OR

Willamette Valley G S Summer 2006 A unique idea, this issue is on summer diversions which are accounts from the newspaper of summer activities in early days in the Salem area. These include, graduations, wedding and family reunions but also an account of a traveling wagon pulled by 4 horses going from Seattle to Cal in 1903. The description of the wagon is similar to the old covered wagons. Another account is from a lady traveling in England in letters home to her husband in 1900. No terrorist incidents. And how was your summer?
