Editorial

Comments from members about what they enjoyed seeing in our Quarterly caused me to realize that it is important to discuss the role of our publication.

A genealogical society's publications have a four-fold purpose: 1) to meet the personal needs of the members by providing a means to contact other researchers (queries and exchanges), 2) education of the members by articles in the Newsletter and Quarterly, 3) preservation and dissemination of records and materials from the society's geographic area (in our case Thurston County, WA), and 4) preservation and dissemination of records and materials that will not be made available otherwise. The latter purpose is being carried out when we publish personal materials from our members or items donated to us. To achieve this we do need you to share your diaries, letters, etc that will then be saved and made available widely through our exchanges and the indexing in sources such as PERSI.

An apology is in order for fouling up the numbering system by using the same volume for the January, April, and July issues of 2001 as I used in 2000 (should be XVI, cover is wrong). Please go back and write on these issues: January: Volume XXVII, No. 1; April: Volume XXVII (this one says January on Table of Contents page), No. 2; and July: Volume XXVII, No. 3. Sorry for the confusion this has caused.

The new year started off with a wonderful program presented by Donna Bingham Munger, author of Pennsylvania Land Records: A History and Guide for Research. This book is not currently available in our library system (I think it will be) but can be purchased from the Pennsylvania History & Museum Commission (www.phmc.state.pa.us/) or from Barnes & Noble, Heritage Quest, or Amazon.com.

President's Message

This message is written in the immediate aftermath of the terrorist attacks that brought so many American lives to an abrupt end. It is a sobering fact that in today's mobile society any of us could have been among the victims. I ask you this: Are your genealogical affairs in order? Is your family history organized so that your heirs can continue the research you have done? Have you organized your own personal history?

To help you organize your personal history, I have requested that this issue include the article "Ten Steps to Recording Your Personal History" by Juliana Smith.

Thanks for reading.

Dick Johnson, President

URGENTLY NEEDED

In order to get our exchanges up to date, we need some back issues of our Quarterly and would appreciate it very much if anyone could supply us with copies of these issues: issues 3 & 4, July and Oct 1997; all of 1998 (two issues 1-2 and 3-4); and all of 1999 (one issue, numbers 1-4). Contact Jean Laws Ivyshire@cs.com or 360-943-6449.

Ten Steps to Recording Your Personal History

Juliana Smith

As family historians, we often forget that we are an important part of our family's history. It should be easy to write our own life story, since we know more about ourselves than anyone else, but we still tend to put it off. Here are a few ideas to help get your personal history project off the ground.

1. Schedule some "me" time.

With today's busy schedules, we often find ourselves rushing from one task to the next, with little time for ourselves. By scheduling a little time to record your personal history, you are allowing time for yourself to reflect on the day and on your life as a whole; this can often be very therapeutic. It can be whenever is most convenient for you--after a hectic day, before the morning rush, or while your spouse is watching a TV show you despise.

2. Make it convenient.

By choosing a method that is convenient, you will be more likely to follow through. If you are more comfortable in front of the computer, create a file for your journal there. You can choose your own platform--from specialized software to a basic word-processing document. If you are more comfortable with a journal and pen, find one that you can take with you anywhere. You can fill it out while you are on a swing in the garden, in a doctor's waiting room, on break or lunch at work, in bed, on an exercise bike, on a bus, train or plane, or even in a car (preferably not while driving though!).

3. Do a little at a time.

While the task of documenting your personal history may seem overwhelming at first, if you do it a little at a time, you will find it much less intimidating. If you focus on smaller periods of your life and don't try to record it all at once, the project will seem much more manageable. If you think of something for another period, you can jot down a note for later reference. It doesn't necessarily have to be done in chronological order, and you can pick and choose your focus as the mood strikes or as memories are stirred.

4. Interview yourself.

If you have a hard time or are not comfortable with traditional forms of journal writing, you might want to interview yourself, just as you would other family members. Ask yourself the questions you would ask an ancestor if you had the opportunity.

5. Live it up with current events.

By including events that were in the news during the period you are recording, your history will be more illuminating as you set it against the context of the times. You may also find that by recalling historical events, you will be stirring more personal memories.

6. Jog your memory.

Events are not the only thing that can bring back memories. Photographs, letters or cards, yearbooks, and other memorabilia can all serve to bring back those memories that have been pushed to the back of your brain. Familiar smells and sounds can also be powerful memory stimulants.

7. Introduce your friends and family.

Include tidbits about those around you. By including friends and family, your descendants will have better insight into family relations and the way you interact with others.

8. Let your light shine through.

By sharing your thoughts, ideals, favorite quotes, and jokes, you will give your readers a glimpse into your true self and let them know what a truly unique and wonderful person you are!

9. Get help online.

There are many sites online that can give ideas, stimulation, and information to help you create a captivating personal history. Here are a few:

10. Make it fun.

There are no rules. If you have fun creating your memoirs, your readers will most likely have fun reading it. Be as creative as you want, and include whatever you want. Photos, textiles, maps, pressed flowers from your garden, news or magazine articles, receipts, recipes, song lyrics or poetry, favorite quotations and jokes, cards you've received, a picture of a sunset--anything that makes you happy or sad or makes you think.

However you choose to preserve your memories, they will be a reflection of you and your devotion to preserving your family history, and your family will love you for it! Patrick McNulty and Mary O'Toole

Karen Bowen

My Great Grandfather, Patrick McNulty was born in 1833 in County Mayo, Ireland. He immigrated to America and was naturalized on March 28, 1859 in Boston, Massachusetts. His profession was listed as a Glass Cutter. He joined the Union Army during the Civil War and was a member of Co. B 1st Regiment, Wisconsin Infantry, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Because of sickness, he was discharged October 16, 1862 in Nashville, Tennessee. After his discharge he worked in the Chicago Glass Works. He married Mary O'Toole who was born in County Mayo, Ireland in 1842 at the Cathedral of the Holy Name, Chicago, Illinois in August 15, 1868. From 1870-1872, Patrick and Mary farmed in Nemaha County, Kansas where their first two children were born, Jerome C. McNulty (my grandfather) born Feb 25, 1870 and Stephen McNulty born in 1872

In 1872, Patrick and Mary with their two children traveled to Washington Territory where they took a Homestead of 160 acres in Littlerock, Washington Territory. Patrick farmed the land and there he and Mary had six more children, Teresa McNulty, born 1873, Veronica McNulty born 1874, Alphonsis McNulty born 1875, Kate McNulty born 1876, John McNulty born April 13, 1881 and Cecilia Sidney McNulty born April 11, 1884. Patrick died August 17, 1900 at 67 years and was buried at the Pioneer Calvary Cemetery, Tumwater, Thurston County, Washington. Mary continued to live in the homestead until her death in 1906 at age 64 years and was buried at Pioneer Calvary Cemetery in Tumwater.

Historic information on Road in front of Old McNulty Homestead The road that passed in front of the old homestead between Maytown and Littlerock was documented in the State Archives as McNulty Road. After submitting a request with documentation in March 1999, the Thurston County Historic Commission approved the name change back to McNulty Road and Thurston County posted historic signs on both ends of the road.

Letter written in January 7, 1889 to Ham Anderson, Esq, Folton, Clay Co, Minnesota

Wash. Territory) Jan 7. 1889
Little Rock)

Ham Anderson, Esq.

My Dear Comrade, I got your adress from Sargent Mosher now in Kansas. I am trying this ten years to get a Pension and could not find the Adress of even one old comrade Officer or Private being here so far away in the wild forests of Washington Territory. I trust if this finds you that you will be kind enough to file a blank for me. H. Mosher filled and sent one to me, he is a true friend and so are you. I send you a blank in my ans to your letter. What I claim is this, I got sick of a fever, At Shelbyville, Tenn June 26th 62 as I came of guard in the morning I am champaigin [sp??] When I got well of the fever, I was bad with diseased Bowells for which I was discharged and have not got over it yet

I was a Glass Stainer By Profession And have to give up a $120.00 a month As foreman of the Chicago Ills Glass Works. And by my luck at farming of Which I knew nothing, I came to this country on account of its mild climate for my health. I am on my farm of 160. I am not rich nor am I poor. But I am well entitled to a Pension as is all of the old Boys in Blue. This is a fine Territory, lots of gold and silver here and good wages 40 to 75 dollars a month. I will remember you Praying for us all. I hope you do so in Earnest now.

We have no snow or storm of any Kind this winter this is the mildest climate I have ever lived in. In your ans to this Please let me know how you are Placed in life as I am interested you and I being close companions.

I will be glad to hear from you soon and if you Know the Adress of any of the old Boys, Please send it to me. As this is a Harison year I hope all the Boys will get something as they deserve from a free and Mighty Republic most the Boys are getting old fast and most of them are now gray and all bear some marks of hardships incurred during the war. I can say much more after I hear from you.

*I Remain for Ever your old and true friend

Writing Effective Electronic Queries

Elizabeth Kelley Kerstens, CGRS, CGL

In the days when genealogical queries were published only in the print medium, each publication had its specific style for receiving queries, and submitters were expected to conform to that style. The publication's style was created for a reason—to allow the best possible method for those perusing the queries to find potential cousins or correspondents.

In today's world of electronics, anything goes when it comes to queries. For whatever reason, some who have been given the power of e-mail won't take the time to learn to use it effectively. This is the case whether the query is sent via e-mail or is posted on a surname board or mailing list. I have repeatedly seen people on Web boards and mailing lists ask those who post to use the subject line meaningfully so people don't have to look at every e-mail. And in my own inbox, I receive numerous requests for assistance that are too vague, asking for the moon without any thought that the assistance will take me valuable time to accomplish.

Here are some bad examples and suggested solutions. These examples are fictitious so I don't offend anyone.

Example of a Bad E-mail Query:

- ☐ Subj: Help
- ☐ Message: I've been looking for my Jeremiah Messersmith for years and can't find him. Can you help me?

This example fails to take advantage of the subject line as a synopsis of the reason for the query. Subject lines assist e-mail recipients in separating real mail from junk mail. Additionally, if the subject line is used effectively, the recipient knows right away the type of request contained in the body of the message. The body of this message is also too vague. If you are writing an e-mail query to a professional genealogist, you should first ascertain the area of expertise of the professional. If your research doesn't fit within that area, you're wasting your time and the recipient's time by sending the query. You should also determine if the person is taking clients, and if so, how much does he or she charge per hour for research? Asking for free assistance from busy people can be presumptuous. There are people that will provide free assistance, but you should assume that someone who is involved in a number of professional activities will charge for research.

Suggested Solution:

- ☐ Subj: Jeremiah Messersmith, of Hammond, IN, 1843-1901
- ☐ Message: I understand that your research specialty is Indiana. I am trying to find more information on my great-grandfather Jeremiah Messersmith, who resided in Hammond, IN, at the time of his death in 1901. Are you available to assist with this research, and if so, what is your hourly rate?

Example of a Bad Web Board/Mailing List Posting:

- ☐ Subj: Smith
- ☐ Message: I am researching Smiths from Tennessee. Willing to share with anyone else doing similar research.

Web boards are typically set up so you look at a number of subject lines for messages posted, in chronological order beginning with the most recent posts. If this were a Smith surname board, and you only provided the word "Smith" as your subject, your message will likely go unread or at a minimum, unanswered. As I said above, the subject line is your chance to synopsise the subject of your message so readers will know if this is a message they would like to look at. On a typical board, there are far too many postings for people to peruse casually. If you provide specific information in the subject line, you're more likely to get action on your message. Similarly, since this is a surname board, why not use as much message space as necessary to encapsulate the families that you are interested in so others will be more likely to recognize any links? The same theories apply to mailing lists. Using the subject line effectively in a mailing list is crucial, as is providing as much information as is necessary to allow people to make connections.

Suggested Solution:

- ☐ Subj: Daniel Smith, of Nashville, TN, died 1876; son of Wilbur Smith
- ☐ Message: Researching Daniel Smith, son of Wilbur Smith and Edna Jones, born in NC in 1825, served in U.S. Army in late 1840s, moved to Nashville in 1851 where he married Lydia Howell, daughter of Herbert Howell. Daniel died in Nashville 5 July 1876. Daniel and Lydia had four known children: Wilbur, Herbert, Joanna, and Lydia. Interested in corresponding with others researching same lines; willing to share GEDCOM file of research.

Genealogical queries can yield wonderful results if they are crafted to gain the attention of potential cousins. Taking a little time and care in writing an electronic query will give your request a better chance for gaining someone's attention rather than ending up in the e-mail trash bin.

EXCHANGE NOTES

By Jean Laws & Letty Schoch

IMMIGRATION VIA THE GREAT LAKES

Many immigrants were called "two-boat people" because they sailed from their homeland to Canada and then to the US via the Great Lakes because the passage to Canada was cheaper. Also, at one time, immigration rules and regulations prevented immigration directly to the US in some cases. To locate the records of these immigrants, search the passenger lists of ships that maintained routes on the Great Lakes such as Duluth, MN and Chicago. Other sources would be passenger and arrival lists in local newspapers. (So King, South King County Genealogical Society, Mar-Apr 2001)

EPIDEMICS

If your ancestor disappeared during a certain time period, a list of major epidemics 1657-1918 may provide a clue. They may have died or moved to get away from measles, yellow fever, influenza, or small pox. (Newsletter, Jefferson County Genealogical Society, Spring 2001)

MILWAUKEE LIBRARY

This issue is full of information about the Milwaukee County Public library and what you can research there. If you have Milwaukee or Wisconsin ancestors, this is a must. (Milwaukee County Genealogical Society, May 2001)

OREGON PIONEERS

Oregon researchers will be interested in an article, "The Losckley Interviews" in the Oregon Journal. Fred Losckley was a journalist who interviewed pioneers and published these from time to time. Some of these are now online and they are listed in this article. (The Sounder, Sno-Isle Genealogical Society, 2nd quarter 2001)

HAMPDEN & HAMPSHIRE COUNTIES, MA NATF FORMS

This issue has wills of Hampden and Hampshire Counties and Springfield families. (American Elm, Western Mass Genealogical Society, Spring 2001)

You can order new NATF forms for obtaining military, pension and bounty land on the web at www.nara.gov. All the old forms have been replaced and you will need new ones. This issue has many helpful hints that will be useful to anyone. (Mason County, WA Log, June 2001)

GEDCOM SELLING

A thought-provoking article on the hazards of submitting your Gedcom files to a commercial site. The data files may be sold, published, etc without your knowledge or permission. Sharing with distant cousins is a different matter. (Stillaguamish Star, WA, May/June 2001)

A CENTURY OF CHANGE

What a difference a century makes! Did you know: the tallest structure in the world was the Eiffel Tower? There were only 8,000 cars in the US and only 144 miles of paved road. The maximum speed limit in most cities was 10 mph? These are just several of "would you believe." (The American Elm, Western MA Genealogical Society, Winter 2000)

SLAVE RESEARCH

Julius Hunter collaborated with the St Louis County Library and St Louis Genealogical Society to acquire a major collection of African American resources such as census, databases, military records for the US

- Colored Troops (USCT), newspapers, Southern Claim Commission records, and Freedmen Bureau files. Records for slave research include manifests from US Customs Service and all census schedules for Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi. (St Louis Genealogical Society Quarterly, Spring 2001 from The Forum, Winter 2000)
- GRANT COUNTY, WA Researchers in Grant County, WA will find the 1920 Stratford Enumeration District No. 53 of the federal census in the March 2001 issue of their Big Bend Register (Grant County Genealogical Society)
- DNA IN GENEALOGY "DNA Testing in Genealogy" is a fascinating article written by Margaret Robe Summit in the Winter 2001 issue of the So King (Sno-Isle Genealogical Society). Several large university studies are in progress. Brigham Young University's study is designed to find information about all lines on a four-generation pedigree chart along with a molecular genealogy study that involves collecting 100,000 blood samples in the next four years.
- 56th US COLORED INFANTRY "The Tragic Story of the 56th US Colored Infantry" relates how many of the group, unnamed and with no official records of their death or burial at the quarantine station, lie in an area known as "Potter's Field." A stone monument was erected by the regiment : "To The Memory of 175 Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates of the 56th US Colored Infantry, died of cholera in the month of August 1866." (Kansas City Genealogist, Winter 2001)
- LOST TOMBSTONE No one expects to find a tombstone in his backyard but a man in Portland, OR did just that. He and a genealogist friend found that it had been taken from a cemetery in the small town of Coburn near Eugene, OR. (Quarterly, Oregon Genealogical Society, Spring 2001)
- MERCER GIRLS "I appeal to high minded women to go into the west...to cultivate the higher and purer facilities of man by casting about him their refining influences that true women always carry with them...It is simply a matter of duty on the part of Eastern women to go to the West where their presence and influence are so much needed" stated Asa Shinn Mercer in a letter to the New York Times. Thus began the saga of what has become known as the Mercer Girls. Peri Lane Muhich has made researching their history an ongoing project and you can find more information at www.mercergirls.com. (Seattle Genealogical Society Quarterly, Winter 2001)
- TOLEDO, OHIO GRADUATES An article in the March 2001 Toledo Area Genealogical Society's Newsletter lists all of the Toledo High School graduating class members for the years 1857 through 1887.
- MINNESOTA RESOURCES The Minnesota Genealogist (Winter 2000) gives pages of Minnesota Genealogical resources on the internet. The Minnesota death index online 1908-1946 is at <http://people.mnhs.org/dci/Search.cfm>.
- AMERICANS ON THE CANADIAN PRAIRIES INDIANA A great article on Immigration Records of Americans on the Canadian Prairies 1908-1918 and details of a statewide Indiana Cemetery registry project that is ongoing along with Indiana naturalizations appear in the Hoosier Genealogist (June 2001).

NATURALIZATIONS
CLARK COUNTY, WA
KOREAN VETS

The Summer, 2001 Trail Breakers (Clark County Genealogical Society) has a list of Clark County men who died during the Korean Conflict and Abstracts from the Vancouver Independent, 1876.

1930 CENSUS

The Seattle Genealogical Society Bulletin (Summer 2001) has a good article on the Federal census with many examples. There is a page on the Seattle branch of the National Archives with new material and a note about the 1930 census which will be available in April 2002. Lists Seattle Public library acquisitions. Don't forget the library's temporary location (2 years) is at 8th and Pike.

FALSE INFORMATION

According to an article which was originally published by the Ventura County Genealogical Society, some people are deliberately falsifying some of their data on the internet. They think this will protect the copyright of their data. So beware of genealogies that are close but wrong. Kern-Gen, Kern County, CA Genealogical Society (June 2001)

CANYON CO, ID
CITY DIRECTORIES

The Spring 2001 issue of the Idaho Gen Society Quarterly features Canyon County, Idaho. Also a good article on city directories, how to use them and what they will do for you.

LESSER-KNOW OR RECORDS

Some places you probably you don't want to find your ancestors: namely, cemeteries for Oregon State Penitentiary, School for deaf mutes, Reformatory and Feeble minded institute are listed in the Beaver Briefs of the Willamette Valley Genealogical Society (June 2001).

WASHINGTON NEWS

OGS belongs to this organization which does the important job of coordinating Washington research and societies. This issue is full of genealogical hints useful to everyone, upcoming events etc. so take a good look. We also received the new 2001 membership directory. (Washington State Genealogical Society Newsletter, Jul-Aug 2001)

FGS NEWS

The Federation of Genealogical Societies is another organization our society belongs to and we receive their newsletter which is filed in the genie file. Take advantage of all the helpful info in it. Some of the articles in this issue are: book and video reviews, Calendar of events, family associations news, and how to manage a cemetery project. (Forum, Summer 2001)

OREGON INFO

The Oregon State Archives is celebrating its 50th anniversary. You can read many interesting articles on Oregon at their web site arcweb.sos.state.or.us. This issue has lists of Oregon's governors, maps of Ore in 1843, '849, 1853 and 1859 showing county changes. (Timber Trails, Yamhill County Genealogical Society, July 2001)

EDWARDS FAMILY

If you have an Edwards line that came in the 1700's from Wales to Virginia, you'll be interested in an article on the "Edwardes Legacy--a supposed claim for the heirs to Manhattan". You may not inherit Manhattan, but you'll be entertained and gain some family history. This is a common theme in many family's folklore--a lost inheritance. (Prairie Pioneer, Warren County, IL Apr-Jun, 2001)

- 100 YEARS AGO In addition to Oklahoma into, there is an article on our world 100 years ago. You may be surprised at some of the items. For instance, Denver and other western towns had a problem with drive by shootings by teenagers on horse-back. Only 8% of homes had a phone and a call from Denver to NYC was $11.00. Leading causes of death in the US were 1. Pneumonia and influenza, 2 tuberculosis, 3.diarrhea, 4. Heart disease, and 5. Stroke. (Oklahoma Genealogical Society Quarterly, V. 46 #2, 2001)
- METHODIST RECORDS IN PA A new historical society has been established that will preserve the records of the United Methodist church in Western Pennsylvania. It will be called the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society of Methodism. Some of their records are for sale. If interested contact William Waybright, 731 Park Ave, Meadville, PA 16335 or uma@alley.edu (Keyhole, South Western Pennsylvania, July 2001)
- 1880 CENSUS CD FROM LDS A helpful article by Susan Dechant on how to use the new Mormon CD of the 1880 census appears in the July 2001 issue of Pioneer Branches from the Northeastern Washington Genealogical Society.
- 1893 TAXPAYERS IN ROGUE VALLEY, OR One article that caught my eye in the Rogue Digger {Rogue Valley Genealogical Society, Summer 2001) was from the Medford Mail 17 Feb 1893 with a list of taxpayers and the amount paid which seemed high to me for the time, some as high as $20,.000. "Lot of gold in them thar hills."
- FAMILY PUBLICATIONS We receive the Richardson Family Researcher And Historical News Including Allied Families. This and other family publications are in the file drawer in the Genie section at bottom of left side. You may find your surnames here so look them over.
- PENNSYLVANIA RESOURCES A brand new made to read on the internet format for this newsletter (Fiske Genealogy Foundation Newsletter, Sep 2001). A good follow-up on the talk we had on Pennsylvania land records is an article called "Pennsylvania Powerportal." This is about the Pennsylvania State Archives now online at www.phmc.state.pa.us. The records so far cover mostly military records from Revolutionary War to WWI and could be helpful.
- ELLIS ISLAND Another great, detailed article on Ellis Island, "Gateway to America", much in the news now that their records are on line. It gives a good picture of what the immigrants there experienced. Other immigration records you should know about are the genealogical records in the Immigration History Research Center at the University Of Minnesota. An article in this issue tells all about them and how to access them. (Minnesota Genealogist, Spring 2001)
- ODDS AND ENDS An interesting article, "Information about the 1500's, family history humor, 11 ways to kill a society and I wonder why. Some examples from this are Why don't you ever see headlines "Psychic wins Lottery?", Why does rain drop but snow fall?, Why isn't there mouse flavored cat food?, Why is it that doctors call what they do "practice?" (American Elm Summer 2001)
