A TEAM OF JET BLACK HORSES DREW THE CUMBERSOME HEARSE, leading the funeral procession as it wound along the road from Our Lady of Good Help Catholic Church to Lakeview Cemetery, overlooking Seattle.

All of the city's most prominent residents had turned out on this warm June day in 1896 to pay their last respects to Princess Angeline, the daughter of Chief Sealth of the Suquamish. Another crowd of mourners -- just plain folks -- lined the route, silently acknowledging the passing of an era.

Princess Angeline had been a Seattle fixture -- a strong-willed woman whose care-worn yet dignified face could barely be glimpsed beneath the calico scarf and woolen shawl she always wore. Yet she was instantly recognizable as she hobbled with staff in hand along Seattle's waterfront or sold hand-made baskets with other Indian women on downtown street corners. Angeline's dilapidated cabin at the end of Pike Street was a bleak reminder of Indian encampments that once stretched along the tideflats of Elliott Bay.

Photographer Edward Curtis had built a reputation in Seattle for his portraits of society matrons, but became fascinated with Indians when he saw Angeline digging clams along the shore. He paid her a dollar for every picture she allowed him to shoot, and soon expanded his subjects, launching what became his life's work: the photographic documentation of North American Indians. As he later told a Seattle Times reporter, he hoped to leave a visual record "of the peculiar ethnic traits of this fast vanishing race."

By the time of Angeline's death, most Seattleites joined Curtis in the belief that the Puget Sound Indian peoples' way of life was, indeed, vanishing. Yet their nostalgic laments for the past were a convenient fiction, ignoring the frequent discord between Indians and newcomers. From earliest encounters, traders and settlers had relied on Indians for necessary supplies, but clashed with them over land and values.

Although some Indians, including Sealth, had continued as friends and providers, others became openly hostile. Violence had resulted, culminating in a short war in 1856. Only isolated clashes marked the next few decades, but Seattle's growing population remained ambivalent to its Indian neighbors. One edition of a local newspaper might refer to Indian peoples with disdainful epithets; the next could lament this "dying race."

The Olympia Genealogical Society announces the publication of:

Cemetery Records of Thurston County, Washington

More than 24,500 names from 21 cemeteries are listed alphabetically in three soft cover, comb-bound volumes. Each listing includes the name, date of birth, date of death and any other information on the headstone. The information for all 21 cemeteries is presented in one alphabetical listing. This eliminates the need for an index and for researchers to review every cemetery when searching for an internment in Thurston County. Each volume includes a brief description and/or history of each cemetery.

QUERIES

Queries by members are free of charge. Non-members may list one free query per issue as space permits. Each query should contain at least one date (or approximation), one surname, one area or other information to identify the person being sought. Queries are subject to abbreviation. All queries should be typed or printed, and should be received four weeks prior to publication (i.e. by June 15 for the July issue).

Send queries to: Ed Swan, 1975 Lakemoor Pl SW, Olympia, WA 98502, or Query Editor, c/o Olympia Genealogical Society, PO Box 1313, Olympia, WA 98501.

Ed note: Since no queries were submitted for this issue, Ed and B.J. have put together the following tips on query writing. Follow these guidelines and you will see how easy it is to write queries for submission for future issues.

Query Writing

by B.J. Moe and Ed Swan

1. Be Brief! 25 to 35 words. Publications that are free usually have a space limit - 25 to 35 words per query, plus name and address. This is a good rule for paid queries which is about all that one can afford. It is better to have short queries in several publications, for wider exposure, than a lengthy one in just one publication.
2. Keep the query centered on one subject or one couple, that is, one or two surnames.
3. Give at least one date and one place for each surname, or couple.
4. When possible, use known facts first, approximations second.
5. Resist the temptation to include everything. Two short queries are best -- even in the same publication - with each query dealing with a different aspect of the same surname or couple.
6. Write your query as if you were going to answer it! If you wouldn't answer what you have written, chances are no one else will either. What you want is information; your reader is also looking for information. If you give some facts, you show that you are working your line. Your facts will tell your reader that you know that information; it may be just what he is looking for, or it may be that he has information that fits before - or after - and by combining your information, you can help each other along. Obviously, you are not going to respond to a query that lists only surnames - with no dates or places - unless there are at least three surnames that you know to be in your ancestry.
7. Make a copy of your query noting the date and name of publication. Enter each query as a "search" on your Research Calendar recording the search number on your copy of the query. When responses come with material to be extracted, you will know after what search to place the extract number. If after six to eight months, you have had no response and you have found nothing further on this person, or couple, you may want to re-submit it or rewrite it. If you get a late response, one or two years, you will need to know what you asked.
8. Keep trying! The more exposure, the better chance of success.

One way to build a query:

Who - Persis ----- wife of Eleazer BLACKMAN, Daniel LADD

When - 1745 -1774

Where - Andover and Bolton CT

What - Desire parents, birth date, and birthplace of Persis -----

Desire parents, birthplace, and birthdate of Persis ----- m 1 / Eleazer BLACKMAN buried Andover CT 1772 aged 22; m/2 Daniel LADD 3 Nov 1774 recorded Bolton CT.

Various publications use different abbreviations. The query may be rewritten using the abbreviations used by the New England Historic Genealogical Society. They follow the rewritten query. Those in italics are from the National Genealogical Society. Most publications state whether they want your query written using abbreviations. When in doubt, write it in full which is a good rule anytime.

Desire par., bp, b Persis m/1 Eleazer BLACKMAN bur Andover CT aged 22; m/2 Daniel LADD 3 Nov 1774 recorded Bolton CT.

Note that surnames are always CAPITALIZED.

Aft	after	div	divorced

b	born, birth	fl.	flourished, lived
bef	before	g.s.	gravestone

d/O	daughter of	w.	wife

d.y.	died young

To send a query to an online/Internet list, use your email and:

1. Write the address in the To: box.
2. Write what the query is about in the subject box. Never leave it blank. Never send a message as a test and labeled as such. Why waste a message on nothing. Make it for real, even if you are just testing. If it is a person, list by last name, then first, then date and place. Example: Cox, David N. 1863, 8th VA Reg.
3. Write out your query in the message/file box. Keep it short and sweet. Just information on the one person, and perhaps his spouse and marriage. Don't include long lists of descendants. Don't send your whole genealogy. Don't send long lists of surnames. If you do any of the above "don'ts", you reduce the chance of getting results because people won't read it all.

Land bought in Ohio from the Federal Government was exempt from ALL taxes for five years from purchase date. NOT TOO

A CLUB!

"I read somewhere that of those in this country with English heritage 75% were descended from William the Conqueror, which also means Charlemagne and would encompass most of western Europe." If you are interested in looking for ancestors back that far see the September 1995 Appleland Bulletin of the Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society (formerly North Central Washington Gen Soc) for bibliographical suggestions.

- CENSUS
PAGINATION
- Check sequence numbers for family and dwelling. Most, if not all of the censuses were bound from loose paper into books. In the process of putting the books together, some pages were not placed in sequential order. After they were bound, a stamped number was added in the upper right-hand corner. Thus, when microfilmed, the pages seem correct. (Tacoma-Pierce County THE RESEARCHER, from THE BULLETIN BOARD of the Eastside Gen Soc, Via the June 1995 CLAN DIGGER.
- GENTLEMAN
- When you see "Gentleman" on a census sheet, it simply means retired. (No reflection on his manners or social standing.) (Tacoma-Pierce County RESEARCHER., from Maryland Gen Soc BULLETIN via Jefferson Co (WA) Gen Soc NEWSLETTER, Summer 1995.)
- ILLINOIS
(PRE-1901)
- Pre-1901 Illinois marriage records are now available at the Tacoma Family History Center for many IL counties. Check the RESEARCHER to see if your county of interest is among those at the FHC. (Tacoma-Pierce County RESEARCHER, Autumn 1995, p 43.)
- THE BIG WIND
OF IRELAND
- Earlier generations of Irish had a habit of describing events as "before the Big Wind" or "after the Big Wind." What did this mean? On 6 January 1839 a storm with tremendous winds began. It raged for days along the coasts of England and Ireland. There were many ships, and hundreds of houses were blown down. Additional damage was caused by fires fanned by the strong winds. It was the most devastating storm within the memory of persons living at that time. (Milwaukee Co Gen Soc REPORTER, WI Source: NEWSLETTER of the Immigrant Gen Soc, August 1995, via A Book About a Thousand Things by Simpson.)
- LOOK AT THE EARS
- This is a "trick" that may be useful in identifying photos of people of whom you have photos at different ages, say in early old age and as an adolescent. One of the best means of identification of people is by the contours of their ears! It is, nearly as good as finger printing. The French require all ID cards to be in profile so that the ear can be seen clearly. No two people have exactly the same contours to their ears. As we age, much changes; but, if you have a picture of Granny at 75 and know who it is, you might try matching the ears with that lovely young eighteen-year-old girl. (CONTRA COSTA Gen Soc, April 1995, via BULLETIN of the San Luis Obispo CA Gen Soc)
- WISCONSIN BIRTH
CERTIFICATE FEE
INCREASED
- There will be an increase in the fees for Wisconsin birth certificates from the current $10 to $12 for the first copy. However, this increase is less than the $15 which was originally proposed. The new fee was in place as of January 1, 1996. (Wisconsin State Gen Society CHAPTER CHATTER, via Fox Valley Gen Soc GENEALOGICAL GEMS, Fall 1995.)

AN ORPHAN WITH A LIVING PARENT?

What was meant by calling a child a "orphan" in old court records and documents isn't what we think of as an orphan today, that is, a child who has lost both father and mother. Back then it often meant a person under the age of 21 who has lost his or her father, but whose mother was not only living but making a home for the child.

Women didn't have the same degree of autonomy in such situations that they automatically do today, when no court action is required for the mother to continue bearing the child if something happens to the father. In earlier times the mother had to be appointed the child's guardian by the court, and she often wasn't. The role was usually assumed by a male relative (older brother of legal age, uncle, grandfather) of the "orphan" with the perfectly competent mother having little or no say about the matter. In some jurisdictions, neither did the child if under 14 years of age; in some an "orphan" 14 years of age or older could be appointed his/her own guardian or could choose the guardian to be appointed by the court.

That, too, is why some states had a separate "orphan's court" in the court system to handle the large numbers of such cases in those days of early deaths by war, accident and illness, and lack of modern medical care. (Seattle Genealogical Society BULLETIN, 44:3)
