Olympia Woman's Club Is Oldest On Pacific Coast

In a town in which men clamored for statehood for their territory and capital status for their community, it is reasonable to assume that women, too, would be alert and forward-looking. Olympia women lived up to their men, back in early territorial days as now, as is evidenced by the fact that the first woman's club west of Denver was organized in Olympia in 1883.

According to Mrs. Goldie Funk, who has written all available histories of Olympia Woman's Club, the momentous step was taken following Miss Mary Shelton's trip to San Francisco, during which she attended a meeting of a new self-improvement club for men and women. Excited and stimulated by the experience, Miss Shelton had suggested to her friends in Olympia that they organize a similar club exclusively for women.

The record shows that a great many Olympia men regarded the idea with cold disfavor; and of the dozen or so women invited to the first meeting, only two were able to accept without first consulting their husbands. These were Miss Shelton herself, and Mrs. A.H.H. Stewart, wife of the territorial U.S. Land Commissioner from Massachusetts. She had belonged to a women's literary club in the East.

Mrs. Funk, in an article, Pioneer Women Dared To Do, published in Evergreen Magazine, 1947, describes the gathering of the charter members of Olympia's first women's club:

"Mrs. Edmund Sylvester, who had the largest house in Olympia and more chairs than anyone else, invited the ladies to organize in her house although, because of husbandly prejudice, she did not intend to join.

"Of these invited to that first meeting, eleven came. But only nine had the courage to face adverse public opinion. These were Mrs. Stuart, a fine looking forceful, intelligent woman who would be a leader among women today. She wore her rich, wavy iron-gray hair short when no other woman did. Women envied her and men respected her.

"Mrs. Ella T. Stork was highly intellectual. She was also pregnant, at forty, for her first and only child, but retrieved herself by presenting the world with a son who is an outstanding baby doctor in Los Angeles today.

"Miss Shelton was ambitious to improve herself. Mrs. Mary Bricker Hartsuck had a man's brain which she dutifully concealed, and a woman's diplomacy which she used with wisdom.

"Mrs. Mehitabel Elder was willing to try anything once. Reverend Sarah Whitney was a minister in the Universalist Church, the only one admitting women to the pulpit at that time.

"Mrs. Pamela C. Hale, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke, was the beloved county superintendent whose examining pencil couldn't make any figures under a passing grade. She held the office only until it paid enough to support a man.

"Mrs. P.D. Moore was a pleasant lady who was sure a women's club would be a cultural influence although, because she was mother of a large family, she could only do her part in years following by graciously seconding the motion.

"Miss Janet Moore was her daughter who, years later, became president of the Sate Federation of Women's Clubs."

The first club, with Mrs. Stuart as president, was called The Olympian Woman's Literary Club for Self Improvement. Meetings were held weekly in members' homes. Members struggled with the rules of parliamentary procedure, listened to papers (Mrs. Funk: "from five to 15 pages, copied carefully from the Encyclopedia Britannica") or fell back, with some relief upon familiar topics such as How to Make Good Bread, or How to Make Currant Jelly.

Olympia Woman's Club soon became an important element of the town's social life. Its annual birthday parties, to which husbands and other guests were invited, were grand affairs, eagerly anticipated and elaborately reported.

Under Mrs. Stuart's level-headed guidance the club invested its small capital in warrants from which it drew interest for many years. The club had been meeting in a rented room for some time when the landlord, having raised the rent from fifty cents to a dollar, raised it again, to a dollar and a half, and lost his tenants. Indignantly the women gathered together their accumulated interest, dues, and small earnings and borrowed enough more to buy and renovate a small house on a desirable corner. This housed the club until, damaged by fire, it was razed to make way for a new clubhouse.

Husbands were shocked by the audacity of their womenfolk. They advised the women to repair the damaged building, rather than to take on the tremendous task of erecting a new house. The women, however, consulted an architect and agreed to raise six thousand dollars. The late Mrs. J.W. Mowell was chairman of the building board. The club gave parties, dances, apron sales and baby shows. It issued bonds which were bought back by members. Within a few years Mrs. Mowell had the pleasure of burning the mortgage.

The club's program, by this time, was showing more originality than it had shown during the first few years; and its civic work was beginning to make an impression upon the community. In 1909, in honor of Mrs. Stuart, the club founded a library of 1,000 volumes, and presented it to the city as the nucleus for a public library.

The club continues to influence and benefit a larger Olympia. A member of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, Olympia Woman's Club and its sister organization, Olympia Junior Woman's Club, take part in the city's civic programs, provide stimulating programs for their members, and contribute to the social activity of the community.

LIBRARY CORNER

BY JEAN LAWS

In the last issue of the Quarterly, there was a list of GENEALOGICAL PERIODICALS AT THE MONTESANO LIBRARY. These are bound periodicals from our collection that were moved to storage at the Montesano Library in order to make room for our genealogical books. The ones sent to storage were short run periodicals that only covered a year or two. They are not the ones we exchange or are adding on a regular basis. They are still available to our members. If you wish to use them, put in a request for the title, place, and date at the reference desk, and they will be sent from the Montesano Library for you to use in our library, just like an interlibrary loan. I know when I am researching in a new area, I like to use the periodicals on that area as well as books, so this is a valuable resource for our genealogists.

A NEW STYLE OF VISITING CARDS

The Paris correspondent of the Journal of Commerce speaks of a new style of visiting card which is beginning to be in vogue among the young bucks of the French capital. It is thoroughly French, and if it ever finds its way across the water, will doubtless be speedily adopted by all good looking young maidens and men. The new mode is thus described:

"For the visiting cards distributed in profusion at New Year, there is a new style which has produced a great sensation, and will, it is said, become the fashion with those who like extraordinary novelties. Instead of the name printed on the card, the small piece of pasteboard has a photographic likeness of the visitor; the face appears in different aspects, according to the circumstances under which the visit is made. For instance, on ordinary occasions, your likeness will bear the habitual expression of your countenance; New Year's day, your face will be joyous and smile your felicitations. If your visit be one of condolence, your portrait will be melancholy and sorrowful. To take leave, instead of the symbolical letters P.P.C. the visitor will be represented on his card coifed with the traveling cap, and framed in the window of a railroad car. The art of photography has been so simplified that the cost of these portrait cards is but small. One hundred may be had for twenty-five franks, or five dollars, and are handsomely executed and embellished."

EXCHANGE NOTES

By Myraleigh Farnsworth Peters

MANY AMERICANS WANDER AROUND

More than one-third of all Americans live outside their state of birth ... in 12 states, more than half the people came from somewhere else. Nevada had the biggest share of outsiders, nearly four out of five came from someplace else, mainly California. Pennsylvania had the biggest share of stay at homes. Only one in five was born outside the state. Altogether ninety-five million Americans were born outside their present state. (OSHKOSH NORTHWESTERN, 10 March 1992, via Fox Valley (WI) Gen Soc, GENEALOGICAL GEMS, Summer 1993.)

QTRLY INDEX

The March 1993 Orange County CA Gen Soc QUARTERLY contains a cumulative index from December 1964 through December 1992.

NEW BELLEVUE LIBRARY

Want to know about the new Bellevue Public Library opening in July? Check out the Eastside Gen Soc BULLETIN BOARD, as above.

FEMALE LIFE EXPECTANCY

Did you know that the life expectancy of a girl born in 1821 was 37 years? (Mary Lou McKibben, Eastside Gen Soc BULLETIN BOARD, Mar 1993.

ENGLAND BEFORE 1066 A.D.

An overview by R.H. Hurst is published in the APPLELAND BULLETIN for Mar 1993. "Much of the strength and heritage of the English lies in the fact that they are one nation but not one race; and even today regional differences can be discerned ..."

POST-IT NOTES LEAVE RESIDUE

It was recommended in the "National Archivist" (May/Jun 1990) that you not attach Post-It notes to any document you want to preserve. The notes leave a residue which will eventually cause the paper to deteriorate. (THE AMERICAN ELM of the Western Mass Gen Soc, Spring 1993, from the OKALOOSA Co (FL) Gen Soc, Spring 1992.)

CALIFORNIA VITAL RECORDS

Because of budget problems, California Vital Records - birth, marriage, death - are no longer available from the state office. It is now necessary to know the county in which the event occurred and you then order the pertinent records from the county rather than through the state. (THE AMERICAN ELM, as above, from LIFELINE, Gen Soc of Riverside, via REDWOOD RESEARCHER, the Redwood Gen Soc, Aug 1992.)

NATURALIZING A FEMALE CITIZEN!

Congress enacted a law in 1907 which caused any American-born female to lose her citizenship if she married an immigrant who was not yet a citizen. The law was in effect from 1907 to 1922. To become a citizen again she would have to go through the naturalization process. (THE AMERICAN ELM, as above.)

ONLY THE MEN HAD BABIES

My ancestor William had children.
All named with birth dates and places,
But his wife is not even mentioned;
Of her, there are not even traces.

Surely she must have existed,
Was born, was a child, and had dreams.
Grew up and learned how to keep house,
Was a person - but nameless it seems.

She had parents, and someplace, a home,
Her brothers are listed, no doubt.
But she was only a girl
So not really worth telling about.

She was half of my ancestor's heritage;
Without her he wouldn't have life.
His genes are half hers, but I find
She was only his father's wife.

Once a girl was first "dau", then was "wife."
She belonged to her father, till married,
and then she belonged to her husband,
and beside him, unnamed, she was buried.

How awful to think my descendants
Might search for a name for me;
Be unable to find identity and wonder just who I might be.

(Eastside (WA) Gen Soc BULLETIN BOARD, Mar 1993) (Submitted by Mary Lou McKibben, from the Champaign Co Gen Soc, Fall 1991, via Dawson Co Historical & Gen Soc Newsletter, quoted in the Savin/Sabine/Sabeian Genealogical Newsletter.)

INDIANA OR IOWA?

When researching the 1850 census remember that IA indicated INDIANA not IOWA, as in later census years. (THE AMERICAN ELM, Western Mass Gen Soc, Spring 1993.)

OHIO ADOPTION
REGISTRY

The Ohio Adoption Registry was established by the Ohio Legislature to provide a confidential and voluntary way for adopted Ohioans and their biological families to find one another. (See the MUSKINGUM, of the Muskingum Co Gen Soc, March 1993.)

ONTARIO CANADA

The "Index Books to the vital records of Ontario have been filmed by the LDS. They consist of 26 reels of film and cover: Births from 1869-1896; Marriages 1873-1911; Deaths 1869-1921. For detailed information see the Southern Calif Gen Soc SEARCHER for April 1993.
